Research Policy

Preamble

Research plays a pivotal role in shaping the academic environment, fostering innovation, and driving advancements in the management and technical education field. Research is essential for enhancing the quality of education. By conducting research, institutions can stay at the forefront of knowledge and impart cutting-edge practices to their students. Research helps develop new methodologies, frameworks, and theories to incorporate into the curriculum, ensuring students receive the most relevant and up-to-date education. Engaging in research allows faculty members to deepen their expertise, broaden their perspectives, and stay updated with the latest trends in their stream. It enables them to make valuable contributions to the field by publishing their findings in academic journals, attending conferences, and participating in scholarly discussions. This constant pursuit of knowledge and expertise translates into higher-quality teaching and mentorship, benefiting students and fostering a culture of continuous learning.

Moreover, research allows students to develop critical thinking, analytical skills, and a deep understanding of the concepts. Furthermore, research in higher educational institutions acts as a bridge between academia and Industry. Institutions can address real-world issues and offer practical solutions by collaborating with businesses, organisations, and government entities. Beyond the confines of the educational institution, research has far-reaching implications for society. Academic research can illuminate various social and economic issues, offering insights into effective and informed decision-making. It contributes to developing best practices, policies, and strategies that positively impact businesses, governments, and communities.

Objectives

Higher educational institutions engage in research to achieve various objectives, which may include:

1. Advancement of knowledge: Research in higher education aims to contribute to the existing body of knowledge by generating new insights, theories, and models. This objective involves exploring uncharted territories, pushing the boundaries of understanding, and expanding the intellectual landscape.
2. Innovation and technological development: Research in higher education often focuses on driving innovation and technological advancements. This objective involves developing new technologies, finding novel solutions to complex problems, and fostering entrepreneurship and industry collaboration.
3. Addressing societal challenges: Many higher educational institutions prioritise research that addresses critical societal challenges. This objective involves conducting research in areas such as public health, climate change, poverty alleviation, sustainable development, social justice, and inequality. The aim is to contribute to the betterment of society and improve the quality of life for individuals and communities.
4. Educational improvement and pedagogical advancements: Research in higher education plays a crucial role in improving teaching and learning practices. This objective investigates

- effective teaching methods, curriculum design, assessment strategies, and educational technologies. The aim is to enhance the quality of education and provide evidence-based practices for instructors and educational policymakers.
5. Collaboration and interdisciplinary research: Higher educational institutions often aim to foster collaboration and multidisciplinary research. This objective involves promoting partnerships between different disciplines, faculties, institutions, and even across national boundaries. The aim is to encourage diverse perspectives, leverage collective expertise, and tackle complex problems that require multidisciplinary approaches.
 6. Training the next generation of researchers: Research in higher education provides opportunities for training and mentoring the next generation of researchers. This objective involves engaging undergraduate and graduate students in research projects, promoting research skills and critical thinking, and nurturing a research culture within the institution.
 7. Economic development and industry partnerships: Research conducted in higher educational institutions can contribute to economic development by fostering industry partnerships and knowledge transfer. This objective involves collaborating with businesses, startups, and government agencies to develop innovative products, services, and solutions that drive economic growth and competitiveness.
 8. Intellectual property and commercialisation: Higher educational institutions may have intellectual property creation, protection, and commercialisation objectives. This objective involves patenting inventions, licensing technologies, and creating spin-off companies based on research findings, contributing to economic development and generating revenue for the institution.

Promotion of Research

Acropolis Group of Institutions (AGI) promotes research by establishing a vibrant research culture that values and recognises the contributions of researchers, encourages intellectual curiosity, supports innovative ideas, and fosters collaboration. AGI will allocate sufficient funding and resources to support research activities and offer incentives and rewards for research productivity, such as tenure and promotion policies that prioritise research output, which can motivate faculty members to engage in research actively. The group will also organise training and mentorship programs to develop research skills and cultivate a community of researchers. Encouraging interdisciplinary collaboration and partnerships within and outside the institution will help address complex research questions and leverage diverse expertise. Furthermore, promoting research dissemination through conferences, journals, and other platforms would enhance the visibility and impact of research findings. Lastly, engaging in industry partnerships and knowledge transfer activities could foster innovation, create practical research applications, and contribute to economic development. By implementing these strategies, the AGI can create an environment fostering research excellence, nurturing innovation, and advancing knowledge and societal development.

Research Promotion Committee (RPC)

The Research Promotion Committee (RPC) is crucial in nurturing a vibrant research culture, facilitating research excellence, and creating an enabling environment for researchers to thrive within higher education institutions. In the Acropolis Group of Institutions (AGI), the RPCs will function at three levels

I) Department Level

- Chairperson –HOD
- Senior Faculty
- Senior Faculty

II) Institute Level

- Chairperson – Director
- Member 1- Concerned HOD
- Member 2- HOD/Senior Faculty

III) Group/Central Level

- Chairperson – Chairman
- Director AITR
- Director AFMR
- Director AIMSIR
- Director DBA
- Director AIPER
- Dean Law

The role of RPC would be:

1. Research strategy development: The RPC helps formulate and refine the institution's research strategy and priorities. This includes identifying research focus areas, setting goals and objectives, and aligning research activities with the institution's mission and vision.
2. Funding and grant support: The RPC assists researchers in identifying funding opportunities, both internal and external, and guides the application process. They may organise workshops, seminars, or training sessions to enhance researchers' grant writing skills and help them develop competitive proposals.
3. Research ethics and compliance: The RPC ensures that research conducted within the institution adheres to ethical standards and regulatory requirements. They may establish and oversee research ethics committees, review and approve research protocols, and provide guidance on research integrity, human subjects, animal welfare, and biosafety issues.
4. Collaboration and partnerships: The RPC fosters collaboration and interdisciplinary research by promoting networking opportunities, facilitating research partnerships within the institution and with external organisations, and encouraging joint research initiatives. They may also coordinate efforts to establish research centres or institutes to foster collaboration in specific fields.
5. Research infrastructure and resources: The RPC assesses and supports the development of research infrastructure, facilities, and resources necessary for conducting high-quality research. This includes advocating for adequate research funding, equipment, laboratory spaces, access to specialised databases or libraries, and other resources essential for researchers' needs.

6. Research dissemination and impact: The RPC supports researchers in disseminating their findings through conferences, journals, and other scholarly outlets. They may organise research showcases, symposiums, or conferences to promote the visibility of research within the institution and the wider research community. They also encourage knowledge translation and the utilisation of research outcomes to create a positive societal impact.
7. Research training and capacity building: The RPC supports the professional development of researchers, including organising workshops, seminars, and training programs on research methods, data analysis, publication ethics, and other relevant topics. They may also facilitate mentorship programs and opportunities for early career researchers to enhance their skills and research capabilities.
8. Monitoring and evaluation: The RPC monitors and evaluates the progress and outcomes of research activities within the institution. This includes tracking research performance indicators, assessing the impact of research projects, and providing feedback and recommendations for continuous improvement.

Any faculty member who wishes to benefit from the research policy will first approach the Institute/Department level RPC. After scrutiny, the Institute/department-level RPC will forward the eligible proposals to the Group/Central-level RPC, which will make final decisions on approvals.

AGI provides full support and facilitates faculty and staff members' professional growth and knowledge enhancement. The Institute allows faculty and staff members to be nominated and sponsored for various professional development events, such as international conferences, faculty development programs (FDPs), etc. Under the institution's policy, the Institute covers expenses, including registration fees, travel, lodging, and dearness allowances, as per the prevailing HR Policy.

The decision of the RPC shall be final.

Research facilities

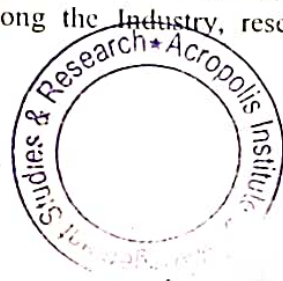

The Institute offers several provisions to support and enhance the research environment for faculty members.

- Faculty members are provided with necessary resources, including the library, for their research projects.
- The Institute nominates faculty coordinators to facilitate research activities who oversee various research-related events such as major research projects, summer internship projects, research methodology workshops, case writing workshops, conferences, and research paper contests.
- status papers, and the registration of in-house cases on platforms of repute. The Institute also strives to list its journal on international e-resources like ProQuest, further expanding the reach and impact of research outputs. (Point not clear)

Collaborative Research

Institutes and businesses recognise the importance of Institute-Industry Interaction in addressing challenges. They seek assistance from the Institute to find solutions for their problems. To facilitate this, the Institute has planned the following activities.

- (1) Industry-Sponsored Project: Through project sponsorship, the Industry can collaborate with experts from the institution to conduct research. The Industry provides financial support, and if a patent is registered, income from the patent is shared among the Industry, researcher, and Institute. This arrangement offers benefits such as research exposure for the researcher, problem-solving for the Industry, and the potential for financial gain for all parties involved, ultimately benefiting society.

- (2) Interdisciplinary Research: Interdisciplinary research is imperative in the present times as many research problems require collaboration across multiple disciplines. The Institute recognises the importance of conducting interdisciplinary research to yield fruitful outcomes. To facilitate this, the following steps will be undertaken: a) Identifying interdisciplinary areas of research, b) Identifying experts from relevant disciplines who can collaborate, c) Assessing infrastructure requirements for interdisciplinary research, and d) Exploring resource possibilities to support such research endeavours.
- (3) Collaborative Research: With knowledge being generated globally, collaborative international research is crucial in fostering mutual learning and expertise sharing. To facilitate this, the Institute will establish Memorandums of Understanding (MoUs) with prominent research institutions and universities, enabling valuable collaboration and the exchange of knowledge and expertise.

Skill Development Training and MDP Policy

The Institute actively supports and promotes Teaching Skill Development Training (TSDT) training and Management Development Programs (MDPs) conducted by its faculty members as resource persons. Suppose the training assignment is received through the Institute. In that case, the concerned faculty member will receive payment equivalent to that of a visiting faculty with 10 years of experience/Ph.D., i.e., Rs. 800 per hour. In cases where the faculty member directly receives a training assignment but requires leave from the Institute to attend, a 20:80 share will be applied (what if a faculty does not require leave). The Institute will receive 20% of the training amount (after expenses), while the faculty member will receive 80%. If the training amount is less than Rs. 5000, the faculty member will contribute Rs. 500 (10% of the amount received, excluding expenses and tax) to the Institute.

All such proposals should be routed through the concerned institute only. In all cases, the faculty member must deposit the cheque or cash received with the Institute, which will then reimburse the faculty member. This process ensures accountability for training-related funds received by faculty members.

Research Misconduct

The Institute defines research misconduct as the act of fabricating or plagiarising research proposals, performance, review, or reporting of research results. However, it is essential to note that research misconduct does not include honest errors, differences of opinion, authorship disputes not involving plagiarism or violations of other institute policies. Research misconduct compromises the academic community's integrity and undermines scholars' credibility. Therefore, the Institute treats all allegations of research misconduct seriously and ensures that fair and well-defined procedures are in place for such cases' inquiry, investigation, and adjudication. To combat plagiarism, the Institute adheres to an anti-plagiarism policy aligned with the "Code of Ethics for Academic Integrity and Plagiarism" suggested by the UGC (University Grants Commission).

Note: IIC calendar year is divided in 4 quarters. IICs can earn maximum 25 marks in each quarter.

*For the IIC calendar year 2020-21, considering the impact of national lockdown had adversely affected all HEIs in terms of deferring and squeezing academic and IIC calendar year, it further limited HEIs in terms nature and mode of activities conducted, and quality participations in comparison to physical mode of activities, further there is drastic reduction in on-campus engagements for innovation and startup generating activities during the period, a normalization approach was applied towards star allocation. Therefore, for the 2020-21, the maximum stars any institution can obtain is 3.5 out of 4 stars allocated. Similarly, for the 5th star, considering the criteria (mentioned in the performance card), the maximum star any institution can obtain is 0.5 star score out of 1 upon fulfilling majority of these requirements. Institute can check the stars obtained in respective sections and total stars obtained at the top of the performance card. This applies to all IIC institutions irrespective of categories they belong to.

Our vision is to integrate these ancient practices into modern lifestyles, enhancing overall health and well-being. We aim to bring the timeless wisdom of Ayurveda and Indian mystics to the forefront, encouraging a holistic approach to living.

Our Journey

Our journey began with the launch of our first product, Tulsi Ark, a potent extract derived from the sacred Tulsi plant. Known for its numerous health benefits, Tulsi Ark is a natural immune booster, stress reliever, and detoxifier. It embodies the essence of Ayurveda, providing a simple yet powerful way to incorporate wellness into daily life.

2. Gau Ark A traditional remedy with numerous health benefits, Gau Ark (cow urine distillate) is known for its detoxifying and therapeutic properties.
3. Palash Juice Extracted from the flowers of the Palash tree, this juice is revered for its medicinal properties, promoting liver health and acting as a natural detoxifier.

As part of our commitment to promoting healthy eating habits, we advocate for the consumption of carbide-free fruits. Our range includes:

1. Mango
2. Guava

- 3. Jamun
- 4. Custard Apple

These fruits are grown and harvested without the use of harmful chemicals, ensuring they are both safe and nutritious.

Our latest addition is the Ready-to-Cook Dal Paniya Cuisine, a convenient meal kit that brings the authentic flavors of Alirajpur to your kitchen. It includes all the ingredients needed to prepare a delicious and wholesome meal, preserving the traditional taste and nutritional value.

Our Commitment

At our core, we are driven by a passion for wellness and a deep respect for the rich heritage of Ayurvedic and Indian mystic traditions. The story of Stackvies

In 2019, we aimed to launch a tech product but couldn't find an agency capable of building our vision despite speaking with over 50 companies. As a result, I, as the founder, took it upon myself to learn every technical aspect needed to build our startup. This journey led to the creation of Stackvies, which is dedicated to providing exceptional services for early startups. Since then, we've also successfully launched other ventures like Octaves and StackMarket.

Report:

Highlights of the Session-

Acropolis Institute of Technology & Research organized a virtual session on the topic “Thinking towards Innovation and Patenting”. The speaker of the session was Prof. Sachin Mittal, Coordinator Innovation and Incubation Cell, AITR. The event was conducted by the Institution’s Innovation Council, aka IIC, an initiative by the MHRD, Government of India. The main motive of the session was to motivate the students towards innovation and patent filing.

Prof. Sachin Mittal then took forward the session by discussing innovation. He encouraged everyone to have a problem solving mentality and to make an effort towards innovation.

Prof. Mittal then explained the difference between innovation and invention in detail.

According to Prof. Sachin Mittal, the procedure towards innovation should be first, to develop an original concept, and then to document that idea. After the documentation, a novelty check for duplicacy should be performed mandatorily. If the concept passes the novelty test, then we may proceed towards patenting our idea.

Prof. Sachin Mittal further explained that there are two kinds of patents:

1. Provisional Patent: In this case, the inventor is given a one-year grace period in which to add or delete any documents, and if everything is in order, their patent is released into the public domain after one year.
2. Direct Patent: The inventor receives no provision time under this patent. If the documents are correct and there is no duplication, the concept enters the public domain.

Prof. Mittal then proceeded to clarify the distinction between copyright and patents. He motivated the participants to seek a patent for the concept since, even if we fail, we would have a list of comparable ideas that have previously been patented and are now in the public domain.

According to Prof. Sachin Mittal, an innovator is not required to commercialize their concept. They may even sell or rent their concept to earn an income.

Furthermore, he also discussed the advantages of filing a patent with the assistance of our college. Prof. Mittal explained that Acropolis assists students in filling out a patent and offers the necessary financial assistance in submitting it. Acropolis also assists students in determining the appropriate commercial amount for their invention by haggling with interested companies.

Moving towards the end of the session, Prof. Sachin Mittal informed the participants about the Acropolis policy, which states that the patent will be submitted in the name of the institution, but the inventor's identity will solely be the student. And the profit will be divided into a 30:70 ratio, which means that the institution will keep 30% of the earnings and the student will keep 70%.

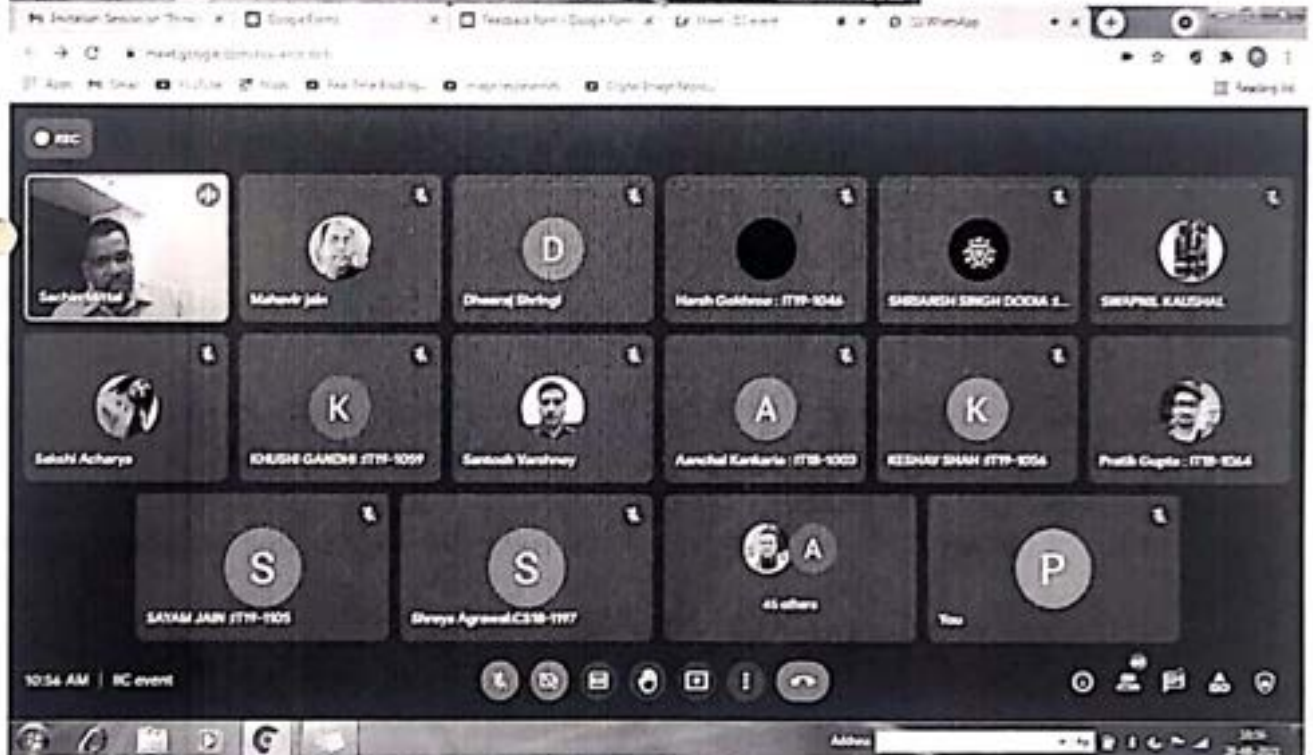

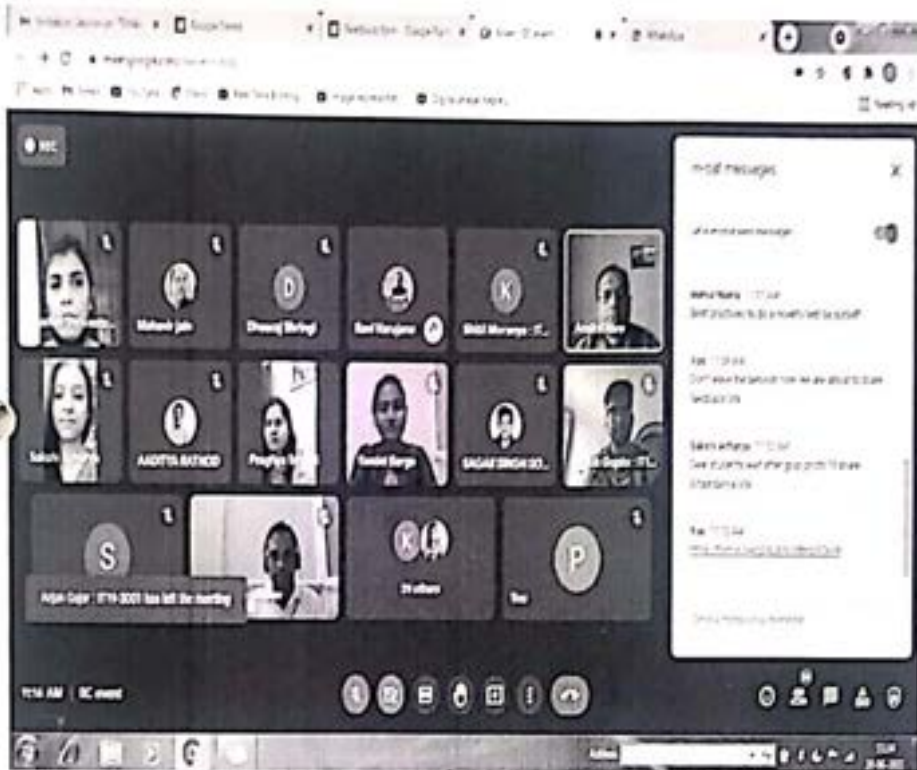

At the end Prof. Sachin Mittal once again encouraged the participants to innovate and file for your patents.

Prof. Sachin Mittal received the vote of thanks from Dr. Nidhi Dahale

Key Points:-

1. Always be creative and try to innovate.
2. Use your mind and develop a problem-solving attitude.
3. One should never be afraid of failure because it always encourages us to try even harder.

Report:

Highlights of the Session:

Under the aegis of Institution Innovation Council (IIC), Faculty of Computer Application department AITR organized a webinar on "How TO File A Patent". She firstly explained about patent framework India. Then, she talked about descriptive meaning of Patent and further she told about terms of patents like patent cannot be filed for lifetime. It is only for certain period, i.e., 20 years from that of filing application. Patent is a country specific/territorial right and is granted for product & process. Novelty, Inventive Step, Industrial Applicability, these are three criteria for a product/process to be registered. Four offices for filing patent are located in Kolkata(Head Office), Delhi, Chennai, & Mumbai. Registration process for filing patent can be explained in these following steps:

- ❖ Front Page – Application Form should be filled in a proper manner.
- ❖ Drawing - It is the pictorial highlight of our patent.
- ❖ Specification – This is the detailed description of patent.
- ❖ Claims– It consists of what an individual is claiming about their patent/process.

Learning Outcomes of the Session:

- Benefits of filing a patent/process.
- Examples of patented & non-patented inventions.
- Detailed registration process of filing patent.
- Who can apply for patent?

HIGHLIGHTS:

Acropolis Institute of Management Studies & Research organized a Startup Carnival, providing a platform for students who have their own startups and wanted to test the market for their products. The carnival also served as a valuable opportunity for those planning to start a new venture. The institute facilitated the selling of products under one roof on campus through stalls. The carnival featured five stalls, each offering unique products:

- 1. MOODFLIP CHOCOLATES - This stall was owned by Vanshaj Shastri, Anyush Rathore, and Aayushi Joshi. These students presented their innovative idea of period cramps chocolates and had the chance to market their product.
- 2. DHANNO'S KITCHEN - Dhananjay Singh Thakur and Shreyanshi Mudotiya owned this stall, where they sold delicious bhel and earned a good profit.
- 3. TAHA CREATIONS - Harshita Pahadiya, a B.Com student, ran this startup, selling handmade scrunchies, earrings, and various accessories that received appreciation from all.
- 4. GSP CREATIONS - Gautam Paliwal, a B.Sc CS student, showcased his technical proficiency by setting up a photo editing stall and successfully earned money.
- 5. DECOR ITEMS - To inspire and motivate students, Dr. Gaurav Chaitanya (AITR) also participated by showcasing decorative items made by his mother. The decorative items were exceptionally beautiful and unique.
